

Olivia Bean Trivia Queen
By Donna Gephart
Review by Autumn S.

Olivia is very interested in being in Jeopardy, so she signs up for Kids Week on somebody's computer. She goes to Washington D.C to compete with the kids and then she goes to a China dinner place. And then she goes to Los Angeles to play the Final round! She also meets her dad at the hotel over there. She also loves the game show host Alex Trebek because he hosted the Jeopardy show and Kids Week. Olivia Bean, Trivia Queen is good for readers who want to be in a game show or be a game show host later in their life.

Why did you like this book?

The book is like an adventure because Olivia Bean travels all around the U.S.A. Another reason I like it because it is very interesting to know all the questions, and this one is one of the funniest: "Polenta is a dish of cooked, ground this." The other funny one is "In 1972, Frito-Lay introduced its Nacho flavor of these chips.

Why should someone read it?

To learn more about how to join a Jeopardy game or a Kids Week game. It also shows perseverance because Olivia knows she should never give up...at first she learned from a television show, and she finally does the contest in Culver City.
